residue now amounts to $2.447.170, to which is added $755,-537 as accumulated income. The balance of the estate has been used up in the payment of bequests and the numerous annuities in the will of Mr. McDonald.

Seeks to Kill Clause.

McDonald, jr., began proceedings last spring in the District Supreme Court to have the "freak" clause thrown out. This clause, which he claims violates the District code with regard to perpetuities, bequeaths to each child the son might have an annuity of $4,000 a year after the child reaches the twenty-first birthday—the amount to be first birthday—the amount to be paid until the child or children reach the age of 30. If McDonald, jr., is alive at that time, the clause vides, then the residue is to be ided—the children receiving one half and their father the other half. At present McDonald, jr., has two children. His claim, upon which he bases his demand for the voiding this clause and the immediate disthis clause and the immediate dis-tribution of the residue to himself, is that this clause ties up the es-tate for the lifetime of persons al-ready in being and for twenty-one years thereafter, thus, he claims, violating the code. For him to-comply with the provisions of this clause, he claims (if it were pos-sible) would amount to sacrificing sible) would amount to sacrificing sible) would amount to sacrificing his legal rights in Ms father's estate. The will provides an annuity for the son of $10,000 a year until he is 26 years of age and thereafter he is to receive $15,000 a year. The clause which provides this annuity contains also a very size for nuity contains also a provision for an annuity of $2.500 a year addi-tional for each child that might be born to the son. When the child or children reach the age of 15, the clause provides, then the annuity is to be raised to $3,000 and remain so until the age of 21 is reached. After that age is reached the an-nuity is raised to $4,000, as already

PROPERTY RIGHTS BAR RECOGNITION OF MEXICO BY U.S.

State Department Looks To Congress to Interpret Land Clause.

The State Department now is ooking to the Mexican congress to interpret various clauses of the new constitution to make recognition of the Obregon government in the near future possible. What the State Department wishes, it was explained, is recognition of property and contractural rights of persons other than those of Mexian nationality, with particular reference to agreements regarding leases of petroleum-bearing lands.

The Assistant Attorney General, Albest Ottinger, was host to a party at the Schubert-Carrick last evening in compliment to Warren T. Martin, secretary to Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty. Among those who have attended the performance of "Cappy Ricks," with Tom Wise in the title role at the Garrick, are the Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Rush Holland, Gen. Baron von Below and Baroness von Below and Senator Wesley L. Jones. Following decisions of the Mexican supreme court, the State Department has been advised that the Mexican congress has sole authority Judge John A. Fain returned from Oklahoma City and has reopened his apartment at the Burlington to remedy the situation by legisla-tion defining the precepts of the constitution of 1917. The depart-ment is advised further that no effort yet has been made in the Mexican congress to define property rights of other nationals. OVER GREAT LAKES.

Mrs. John Malcolm McLachlen and Miss Louise Veihmeyer have just concluded a cruise on the Great Lakes on the steamer Juanita.

From the Mexican supreme court decisions, the State Department announces, "the inference is that petroleum properties in process of development before May 1, 1921, are protected from a retroactive application" of the confiscatory article of the Mexican constitution. Dr. Louise Acres and Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Denny, of Chicago, who are en route to Atlantic City, are at the

of the Mexican constitution.

The supreme court decisions, the State Department maintains, do not deal effectually with the rights of American owners of lands where prospecting for oil and other sub-soil substances has been going on ington from New York City, and will take up the work of the cramization in preparation for the winter activities. Mr. Gelder: * :n Chicago, and is expected to return to Washington in a few lavs. Appeal to Harding To Retain Inventor Walter Johnson are among quests registered at Highland Inc. Alcon-
